“ I know I'm months late on this, but when I was stationed in Iraq in 2009, I thought about Mrs. Wright who had taught me in the 3rd grade at Vance Elementary. She was a great and loving teacher who helped me during those difficult early years after my parents divorced. I was able to find her email at the Hueytown library and exchanged many with her while I was deployed. After I returned back to my station in Hawaii I lost track and only recently thought of her again only to discover she had passed away. I am so happy to have known her and wish every comfort for her family. I heard recently that a person's influence only ends when the last person who knew them dies. Be assured that her influence on myself and hundreds of other students, co-workers, and family will continue far beyond her departure from this mortal life. ~ Jim Moore
